A Guide to Foreign Obama Cartoons Bohdan O. Szuprowicz

The cartoons we have identified in this guide are mostly foreign in origin although in many instances they are written in English, clearly prepared for distribution and use in English-language publications.

Many foreign cartoons about Obama are seen to be insensitive, offensive, irreverent, vulgar, racist and otherwise “politically incorrect”. They are often rated unsuitable for American audiences by large segments of the liberal media. As a result many such cartoons are never seen in American newspapers or magazines. This also means that many European or other foreign opinions about Obama leadership and their perceptions of US foreign policy are not well known or understood in the United States.

Many cartoon syndicates and distribution services, within and without the United States, offer such foreign cartoons to journalists, editors and publishers. However, liberal American media are often reluctant to use such materials

The objective of our guide is to identify Obama cartoons in foreign sources such as newspapers and magazines as well as radio and TV commentaries that have been published since 2008 when Obama was elected President of the United States. We try to locate these sources in countries like Afghanistan, Argentina, Australia, Brazil, China, Cuba, Czech Republic, Egypt, France, Germany, Ghana, Indonesia, Israel, Iran, Iraq, Japan, Kenya, Libya, Nigeria, North Korea, Norway, Pakistan, Palestine, Poland, Russia, South Africa, South Korea, Sweden, Syria, Venezuela, and wherever else such cartoons may have been created.
