Gillian Christian was never one to think that violence was the answer. She was the good girl with a good head on her shoulders. Her life was planned out for the next 20 years. Her perspective changes after going through an ordeal that would make anyone into a basket case. She finds herself struggling between what is right and wrong. Dealing with her feelings and wanted to exact revenge leads her into a world of being a vigilante.

Her main concern is ridding the world of those that have committed acts that hurt the innocence. She soon finds out that her work is not exactly as clandestine, as she might have thought. This is her story, as she comes to terms with who she is and why she started this campaign in the first place. What she doesn't grasp is the past is never out of reach, no matter how far you run

Wrong place

Being made into a killer was not how Gillian Christian thought that her life was going to go. 13 days was not only an unlucky number, but it was something that held a very deep significance in her psyche. Seeing her friend die by the hands of a man that had one gold tooth and a very distinctive voice had changed her. From that day forward, she began to realize that she was set on a campaign to do harm to those that were doing harm to others. She had recently seen that somebody was trying to set her up for high profile skills of dignitaries in the city. She goes to investigate, grilling the detective in charge, until she has no choice, but to get into the thick of things. She still has a target that she has to make an example out of to others. She also had a target on her back by an unknown assailant that had taken an interest in her.
