Raki Maheson born of a low cast mother and Tamil father in the town of Salli, on the north- easterly tip of Sri Lanka occasionally invaded by the rebel forces of the Tamil Liberation fighters. All his salient traits of his personality are traceable to his strong low cast roots, which despises compromise and forbids diplomacy, contempt for privilege, love of argument, distrust of the religion and faith in humanist logic. These were some of the characteristics of the rugged folks of the Salli district from whom Raki sprang. A number of them, too, are readily prone to mental disorder of one kind or another.

On February 1985 Raki was arrested at his Orrs Hill home, after human remains had been identified as the cause of blocked drains. Within days he had confessed to fifteen gruesome murders over a period of four years. His victims, all young call girls, had never been missed. It is a story of a singular relationship between a mass murderer and society as some of the victims could have been spared, had the police been more efficient

DESCRIPTION:

With three of the killers taken care of for the brutal murder of their wives. Ex-cop, Roy Klyne, better known as 'the Hunter' and his friend Bill Bates were now after the rest of the gang of killers.

As much as they were in pursuit for vengeance, there were others, too, keen on vengeance especially the rich senator Nathan whose son was the leader of the gang of killers and was the first to die at the hands of the two avengers. The senator did not bother much about the law as the law seemed to keep a blind eye on the whole sordid incident. He did not care whether he was justified in seeking revenge for the death of his son.

The rich senator now hired some professional hit men to track down the ex-cop and his friend. It now appeared that the hunters were being hunted. Will it be a stale mate or will the two friend despite the bounty on their head be successful in their mission of vengeance, one has to be patient to know the final outcome.
