How I Survived Twin Brothers: The year of nail polish, pee and...wait, did you say Mom put the kitchen chairs in time out? Tina Kapinos

Nine-year-old Kristin is less than thrilled about becoming a big sister for the first time--especially to twin brothers. But when they arrive, she has to admit, they are kind of cute. And she likes how they smile when she sings, "I'm A Little Teapot" to them. But she soon discovers that life with twin brothers isn't easy. There are the baby gates to navigate, the house rules that change almost daily and the peeing--don't even get her started on the peeing. You try to be a helpful sister and, well...

Follow Kristin as she and her parents try to make it through their first year of being a family of five. It's a year filled with new discoveries, new problems and an awful lot of questions: Why are you putting nail polish on my brothers? Who closed all the bathroom doors--did you want me to pee in my pants? Why is everything we own on the kitchen counters? Did you just say that there are no chairs at the kitchen table because Mom put them in time out? And, why, oh why, doesn't anybody tell me anything!
