Carol went to the football game knowing that she was being set up on a blind date. She knew that Garrett was a very handsome man. She knew that she'd been single for far too long. And she knew absolutely nothing about football.

Garrett is strong. He's tall. He's quick-witted. And he's incredibly attracted to Carol the moment he lays eyes on her. Going the whole evening without her is hardly an option for him.

Here's an excerpt:

The second the girls had entered the bathroom, he grabbed my hips. And he spun me around. He pulled down my pants just enough.

I knew what he was doing. I knew that he shouldn't have been doing it. I knew that those girls wouldn't be in the washroom forever. But we both wanted it so bad. I wasn't about to stop him, and he wasn't about to stop.

He pulled down the front of his pants enough that his zipper wouldn't get at me, and then he slid into me, fast. There wasn't any time to spare. He stretched me open inside. It was like he was scratching an itch that I'd had in me for months. At any second, another person could walk out of the arena. Those girls could come back out of the washroom. But he didn't care. He needed me. Right then.
